

Who are Collaborative Law Merseyside?

The family lawyers in the Collaborative Law Merseyside group are all members of, and have been trained in collaborative law, by Resolution. They have many years' experience advising on separation, divorce, children, financial arrangements and other legal and practical issues that can arise when family relationships break down.

The family lawyers in the Collaborative Law Merseyside group are supported by family consultants and financial professionals from across the region.

To find out more visit www.collaborativelawmerseyside.co.uk

To find out more about Resolution and family law in general, visit www.resolution.org.uk or contact your local representative below.

Finding Solutions Together

How collaborative law helps ease the pain of family breakdown

Sometimes, talking things through can seem like the hardest thing of all. Especially when relationships break down, hurt, bitterness and anger are often the strongest feelings.

But almost always, the very best solutions are those which you work out for yourselves, together- in which everyone involved can share.

At its simplest, that's what collaborative law is all about – reaching solutions together, to ease the pain of relationship breakdown and create the best chance of building a brighter future.

Changing the way people resolve family breakdown...

Traditionally, when couples split, they each take independent advice from specialist family lawyers. Working through their lawyers, they try to reach agreement on how best to settle their differences.

They work out how to share their assets – and the responsibilities, for the children for example – as they each go their separate ways.

In many cases, with the help of Resolution solicitors, couples reach agreement in this way. Where they don't it is left to the family courts to decide, and that leads to uncertainty, and often more heartache.

So imagine the alternative. You and your former partner sit down and, with the help of your own solicitors, all together in the same room, you work it out, face-to-face.

Rather than dealing through your solicitors, you work with them, to reach the best solutions for you and your family.

What it needs to make it work...

It sounds so straightforward. But to work it needs the right people, with the right frame of mind:

A genuine desire to make it work.

A willingness to disclose, fully and honestly, information about all assets.

Skilled trained solicitors who are practised in working in the new collaborative way.

An agreement that you will reach a solution without going to court.

What makes it so successful...

You still benefit from having your own independent legal advisor. But you are in control, without the threat of court proceedings hanging over you.

You set the agenda, so you talk about the things that matter most to you and your family.

You maintain contact with your former partner. That way, you have the best chance of understanding each other, and finding the right solutions.

You set the pace - because you are not governed by court dates and appearances.

Remember, if children are involved, you will both remain parents, and it will help your children to cope better with your separation if they see that you are working things out together.

Most importantly, the key decisions you make about your future are yours-they are not made by a stranger in a courtroom.

Collaborative lawyers sign an agreement with you which disqualifies them from representing you in court if the collaborative process breaks down. That means they are absolutely committed to helping you find the best solutions by agreement, rather than through conflict.

The collaborative approach is fundamentally changing the way people think about family law. For couples who genuinely seek a fair solution, and want to minimise the pain of family breakdown, it may offer the very best way ahead.

